Who we are

Restore One is not-for-profit organisation dedicated to developing and empowering impoverished communities in Cambodia.

As the name suggests, we bring about change and restoration, one community at a time.

As such, our focus is local yet comprehensive, working with individual communities to address issues in the following key areas:

- Education
- Employment
- Housing
- Healthcare and hygiene
- Sustainable food production
- Child welfare and safety
- Women's health

Why Cambodia?

Cambodia is a broken country, one of the most disadvantaged societies in the world.

Once one of the most promising economies in South-East Asia, it was torn apart by the genocidal Khmer Rouge regime between 1975 and 1979. During this period, the social and economic fabric of the nation was all but destroyed. Entire cities were evacuated, with infrastructure left in ruins.

Most of the population was forced to work as slave labour in rice paddies. Up to 2 million people (a quarter of the country's population) died as a result of starvation, disease, torture and executions. This is history for the rest of the world, but for the people of Cambodia, the legacy of this period is disturbingly real.

Reports of economic growth are deceptive, because the wealth often does not flow through to disadvantaged rural communities.

The Basic Facts

The World Bank classifies Cambodia as a low-income economy.

The country has a population of almost 18 million.

About 18% of the population are living on or below the poverty line, mostly rural villagers.

Quality employment is difficult to find, with much of the rural poor relying on subsistence farming, low-paid farm labouring, and even prostitution.

Cambodia is a notorious strong-hold for human trafficking networks. Young girls can be sold into slavery by parents desperate for money.

Education is under-resourced, with a primary student-teacher ratio of 42:1.

Rural houses are generally one room, and built from flimsy materials that fail to shelter families from the heavy rains of the monsoon season.

Awareness of health issues is limited by lack of education, social stigma, and traditional beliefs.

24% of Cambodian children are under a healthy weight, and 32% have stunted growth.

What makes Restore One different?

1. Our focus is local

Our overriding passion is to bring about change in Cambodia, one community at a time. We develop and maintain close local-level relationships, because they are key to any positive change.

2. Our approach is practical

At Restore One, we do not believe in “bandaid” solutions. We change lives in a tangible, sustainable way. From houses for the homeless to micro-business for the unemployed, we judge potential projects with one question: “Will this have a genuine and lasting impact on the lives of these people?”

3. We partner with communities

Who is in the best position to judge what a community needs? The community itself. Everything we do at Restore One is driven by consultation and feedback from those we are trying to help.

We have local employees who manage relationships with the communities where we work. We utilise local labour in our projects, and consult closely with local leaders.

4. We have low administration costs

We have taken important strategic steps to prevent financial waste and ensure that contributions go directly to the communities where we work.

For example, we obtain volunteers for some sections of our organisation that would normally have a high salary cost, such as media and marketing.

For the most part, we maintain our exposure through news coverage in Australian local media, an approach which avoids high advertising costs.

We have also made significant savings by not operating an office in Australia, where work is done remotely.

Our Current Initiatives

Secondary School – Kampong Thom Province

Kampong Thom is the second-largest province in Cambodia, and the village where we work is one of the poorest in that province. Education is crucial here. Without it, the best-case scenario for local children is a life of subsistence farming or labouring. The worst case is a life of slavery, sexual or otherwise.

Restore One partnered with the Cambodian Government to build a Primary School. As of November 2020 the Government took over the ownership of the Primary School, and the library.

In November 2015 we opened a Secondary School. Here children can obtain the skills needed to get a good job. Not only do they do the standard Khmer curriculum studies but learn English as well. 2017 brought about the opening of a computer lab where all students learn the skills needed in the work place. One of our biggest expenses is teachers wages. The wages in total are approximately AU$13,000/ month.

In light of this great success, our goals are to:

- Raise the wages of our teachers. This will allow them to live with greater dignity and fully commit to their work as educators.
- Bring professional teachers from Australia to provide much-needed training and professional development for our local teachers.
- Provide English classes. Knowledge of the language will allow children to work in the hospitality/ tourism industry when they are older, offering them a way out of poverty.
- Position the school as a focal point for community well-being, eg. offering classes in effective parenting, health/hygiene principles etc.
- Provide a school holiday job for the high school girls. This will enable them to earn money working in the safety of their village. Every year since 2016 have seen the girls make Christmas decorations that were brought back to Australia and sold.

How can your organisation help?

A Pre School teacher's salary.	$1,000 for one teacher for one month.
A Secondary school teacher's salary.	$1,000 for one teacher for one month.

Girls Holiday Project	Buy Christmas decorations
Agriculture/Plants and seeds	$2-$20

With our assistance, this school is poised to become one of the most important centres of learning in the area. Please join us in making that happen.

Pre School – Kampong Thom Province

Why a Preschool? The primary aged children often care for the little siblings while Mum and Dad are working in the fields.

Some of the little buttons were even coming to school with their older siblings. Restore One opened the preschool November 2016 to be a safe place for the little ones that was not disruptive to primary education. Also the students are provided with a nutritious meal each morning.

Along with a fun safe place, it is a place to learn hygiene and social skills ready for "big school". There is a great habit formed for school attendance rather than work. A local villager helps to run the preschool and part of our goal is to up-skill the teachers. If you're an early childhood teacher and would like the opportunity to partner with us, contact Tanya.

Micro-Business and Life Skills Training

Sewing & Textiles Enterprise – Phnom Penh

Because of the significant poverty and social problems in Cambodia, women from poorer families are required to work as well as raise children. Many are poorly educated, with low-paid farm work or prostitution often being the only realistic options for an income.

These forms of work may take them away from their families for long periods of time. It is not uncommon for women to return home, only to find that their daughters have been sold in order to make ends meet. Therefore, it is essential that women have a means of working from home, in order to generate an income and care for their children at the same time.

At Restore One, we have established a micro-business in Phnom Penh:

This is a TEXTILES DESIGN and SEWING BUSINESS run by young mothers in a slum area of Phnom Penh.

The real expenditure of these projects is not the materials, but the life-skills training and education that we intend to deliver for these disadvantaged young women.

Houses for Families in Need – Kampong Thom Province

One of our successful projects has been the funding and construction of houses for poor rural families.

Cambodia's monsoon season brings brutal rainstorms and flooding, so protection from the elements is an especially serious issue.

In consultation with the local people, we have developed a design that is both simple and highly effective.

The houses are made with a cost-effective yet reliable combination of bamboo and timber. They are also raised on stilts to avoid flooding.

The houses are constructed as a collaboration between Restore One volunteers and local labour, to create an added benefit of employment and income for local tradespeople.

This project has changed the lives of many vulnerable families, and there are always more to help.

Accountability is key. A family is given a house on the condition that they maintain it as a positive, uplifting environment for their children. Upon receipt of a new house, the parents sign a contract whereby they commit to:

- Keeping the house in a reasonable state of order and care.
- Using income responsibly, to provide for their children.
- Sending their children to school.

This agreement ensures that the time and money spent constructing a house is put to good use for responsible families.

Toilets for Families – Kampong Thom Province

In 2019 we began building toilets in the village. These buildings provide an obvious hygiene necessity, but they also provide a safe place for women and girls to do their business.

The people receiving toilets have to attend a toilet cleaning and hygiene class.

Most families receiving a toilet pay 20% of the costs to construct their bathroom. We believe it is important to co-fund this, as it gives ownership to the toilet.

The toilets are constructed as a collaboration between Restore One volunteers and local labour, to create an added benefit of employment and income for local tradespeople.

This project has changed the lives of many vulnerable families, and there are always more to help.

The Restore Rose Project

In Cambodia, the average wage of a low skilled worker is AU$60 a month. Many women struggle to fund the cost of pads and use rags as an alternative. Issues such as discomfort, inconvenience and the fear of leakage affect, among other things can reduce their attendance at school and work. There is currently NO garbage collection in rural areas. Often pads are burnt or buried. This causes another hygiene issue when dogs dig them up.

Solution

The Restore Rose is a reusable, convenient, cost efficient and environmentally friendly alternative to pads and tampons. Unlike tampons and pads, the flexible silicone cup collects menstrual fluid rather than absorbing it. It can be worn 2-3 times longer than a pad or tampon, or up to 12 hours.

The Restore Rose Project

Restore One has issued 15,000 cups to women. Our follow up studies shows that 90% of menstruating women are using them. To receive this free gift, women have to attend a Restore One Education Class on how to use them. This is currently run by Restore One staff and organized by a local health worker.

Restore One has issued cups to women all around our area and we have continued on in a new province.

In addition to empowering women to manage their period with confidence and ease, this project will positively impact the environment by reducing consumption and waste.

Now available in Australia

Restore One has now made the cups available to Australian women. For just $20, you can buy a Restore Rose which will support Restore One in providing a menstrual cup for TWO Cambodian women. Alternatively for every $20 donated 3 Cambodian women will receive a Restore Rose Cup.
